Answer: Macbeth hesitates before murdering King Duncan because of his moral reservations and conscience. In his soliloquy in Act 2, Scene 1, he expresses doubts about committing the murder, contemplating the horror and unnaturalness of regicide. He fears the moral consequences and the repercussions that such an act might bring, saying, "I have no spur to prick the sides of my intent, but only vaulting ambition, which overleaps itself and falls on the other." This hesitation highlights Macbeth's internal conflict between his ambition and his conscience, a key theme in the play.
